

The million-dollar bill you are likely holding in your hand right now probably caught you by surprise. Once you realized it wasn't legal tender, you might have paused to think about what you would do if someone had really given you a million dollars.

What if someone offered you a million dollars for one of your eyes? How about five million dollars for both of your eyes? Would you do it? Would you spend the rest of your life blind for any amount of money? Probably not. Why? Because your eyes and the gift of sight are precious to you.

It has been said that the eyes are the windows to the soul. The following statement is also true. "For what does it profit a man to gain the whole world, and forfeit his soul?" Is not your soul of far greater value than even your eyesight?

To learn the answer to life's million-dollar question, please take a moment to carefully read the back of this million-dollar bill. You may not have received a million dollars today, but what you have received is the answer to life's most important question, which is of far greater value than all the money in the world.
